Prepared by the staff of the Foreign Language Innovative Curricula Studies, a state-wide Title III, ESEA project sponsored by the Ann Arbor Board of Education and aided by the Center for Research on Language and Language Behavior, University of Michigan.

This document is designed as a guide to current bibliographies, curriculum guides and periodical literature in Negro history and culture. It provides the reader a large number of choices of materials many of which are appropriate for use in the schools.

The first section is a list of bibliographies of Negro history and culture. The second is a selection of available curriculum guides containing useful references of their own. Finally, there is a compilation of periodical literature including scholarly and cultural items as well as some for young readers.

The occasion of this collection was the need for an overview of existing materials in the area of Negro heritage and culture as background to a foreign language unit "French West Africa: An Area Study in French." It is our belief at FLICS that teachers of the social studies, English and foreign language may find in culture a common theme to focus and connect their efforts. Biases, intentional and otherwise, are those of the compilers and do not represent policy statements by the Office of Education or other related organizations.

The usefulness of this item is increased significantly by many interested people who offered direct and indirect contributions. The errors and omissions are those of the compilers.
